"I have yet to come across an individual who has dedicated so much time, resources and effort to accomplish so much in communities within a very short timeframe. I know of many organizations and individuals who have been helped by Mr. Noorani or benefited from his many targeted, community-oriented endeavours."

—Dr. Godwin Eni

"Nick was an excellent addition to the program. He offers such a unique perspective on the issue, both from his experience as an immigrant advocate and as an immigrant himself but also now that he has chosen to make Canada his home."

Aside from this unique perspective, Nick was also very friendly, open-minded and a wonderful participant due to his eagerness to have this kind of conversation while showing respect for other perspectives. When he spoke it was from the heart, from a lived experience that he wanted to share."

—Taigita Bilh, Program Coordinator

"Being Canadian: The Fine Balance of Citizenship and Identity", SFU's Centre for Dialogue

"The speech you gave us this afternoon was so inspiring and encouraging! Before today, that flame in my heart had gone out a long time ago; thank you for letting me recall the feeling of having it back! I hope I can hear your wonderful speech more often. I really appreciate your offer to help no matter what results may be. This goodwill makes us feel less being all alone and desperate. Thank you so much!"

—Iris W.

WHO IS NICK?

Dubbed a social entrepreneur and an immigrant advocate, Nick Noorani is founding publisher of Canadian Immigrant magazine and author of best seller Arrival Survival Canada, published by Oxford University Press. Above all, Nick is a proud Canadian immigrant who connects with other immigrants across the country on several levels helping them succeed in a new country.

He is also the host of his own radio show called “Ask Nick” on Radio Canada International, a well-known media personality with regular appearances on Canada AM, CBC’s The National and more, and founder of Immigrant Networks, an online networking site.

A sought-after speaker and member of several speakers’ bureaus, Nick’s frank and humorous presentations bring in stories from his own immigrant journey as an advertising executive from India as he discusses the importance of diversity in business and the successful integration of immigrants in Canada.
